Civil Air Patrol To Get Regular Pay

County Commission employees who also double as members of the Civil Air Patrol got a break in their pocket books yesterday.

CAP members, like many other public service organizations, are subject to call in emergencies, which sometimes means time off from their regular job.

The county commission agreed this week not to dock any employee who is off the job because of a CAP emergency. At the same time the board instructed its attorney to check workmen's compensation regulations covering employees on CAP duty.

The Palm Beach County Commission this week took steps to set up future regulations for the control of air pollution.

The board adopted a resolution declaring its intent to seek special enabling legislation to set up air pollution control. The board plans to seek such special legislation during the next session.

Meantime, its action Monday, will allow the board to make application for Federal funds to help underwrite costs of air pollution surveys.

State Board of Health authorities expect to have model ordinances aimed at controlling air pollution ready in about six months.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Cross of Canal Point celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary yesterday — August 6 — with members of their immediate family.

Harold Jones returned to his home in Clewiston after being the guest of his grandmother, Mrs. C. B. Jones.

We're On Vacation At Everglades News

If live reading matter comes up a little short in this week's paper, think nothing of it. We're on vacation. The Everglades News office is closed and those of us who sweat 50 weeks in the year producing this great palladium of the family fireside are yonder on a creek bank enjoying our favorite pastime.

If everything goes according to schedule, the office of this newspaper will be open and ready for Fall's business to start on August 19. So, should you dial our phone and there is no answer, please remember, that we are on that well-deserved vacation.

Pahokee-Canal Pt. Taxes Are Highest

To the citizens of the Pahokee-Canal Point area goes the dubious honor of being allowed to pay the highest taxes in the county for the coming year.

Many taxpayers are going to be wondering what happened to raise their taxes and it is easily explained. The hospital millage in the Pahokee-Canal Point district has been raised from 3.75 mills to 5.50 mills—an increase of 1.75 mills.

It will be of interest to taxpayers to note that the millage in Belle Glade district is unchanged at 3.75 mills.

Chief Of Police Leave Of Absence

Leon Guthrie, chief of police of Pahokee for the past 14 years, has asked the city council for a final leave of absence. The chief gave health reasons for his action.

Earlier last week the chief tendered his resignation effective August 31, with the final two weeks of the month allowed him as a paid vacation by the city council. Later, the chief asked the council for the extended leave of absence.

Marine W. M. Johnson Jr. Gets Promotion

MURTLBE BEACH, S. C.—Cadet William S. Plumer, Jr., of Pahokee, recently completed the U. S. Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC) summer encampment at Myrtle Beach AFB, S. C.

Cadet Plumer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Plumer, Sr., of Pahokee, observed and took an active part in flying and support phases of operations at the "Tactical Air Command" base during the month-long encampment period.

A member of the AFROTC unit at Duke University, he will be eligible for a commission as an Air Force second lieutenant upon completion of AFROTC training and graduation from college.

The cadet is a graduate of Asheville, (N. C.) School for Boys.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Smith accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Cross, are vacationing at Lake Lure, N. C. They plan to visit Mr. Smith's mother at Douglas, Ga.

South Stars' Win Has Peacock There

The much publicized All Star football game in Gainesville last Saturday night is history now and a Pahokee boy made his mark and was on the winning side — The South. Harold Peacock with his 200 pounds was the idol of many, many Lake Okeechobee fans who made the trip for the game.

One of the Miami Herald's sports writers was very liberal with his kind words about the youth. Following is a part of his enthusiastic remarks about Peacock.

Peacock is the boy who rewrote the record books at Class B Pahokee High School and captained last year's Little All-State football team. He is considered the finest footballer ever produced in the lake area. He even won a berth on the South All-Star football team despite the dominance of Class AA and A schools.

A motorcycle traveled from Pahokee to watch Peacock play his final prep game Saturday night. He's entering Northeast Oklahoma Junior College.

There were 14,500 fans at Florida Field for the 16th annual All-Star game, won by the South, 20-14. But few cheered as heartily as the group from Pahokee.

Each time Peacock's name echoed over the loudspeaker, they cheered him on offense and defense. They even took up a chant, "We Want Peacock," when the South offense bogged down midway through the first half and the North went ahead, 14-0.

South Coach Holland Aplin of Tampa Robinson had planned to use Peacock as "monster man" on defense — a roving line backer. But when Aplin found backfield blocking missing he called on Peacock for double duty.

Magistrate Court On Short Vacation

Starting August 10 and running through August 24 will be vacation time for Magistrate J. L. Tyson and his court at the Glades Office Building. The judge will recess for the two weeks following next Monday's session.

In case of emergency, court cases will be taken to either County or Criminal Court in West Palm Beach in Tyson's absence.

The office at the Glades

Building will be open as usual during the absence of the judge with Miss Barbara York, a deputy court clerk, in charge.

Criminal matters needing attention will be handled by Assistant County Solicitor Billy Jackson, who maintains office hours here twice weekly on the regularly-scheduled court days.

Mrs. Martha McIntosh and Miss Julia Mathis left Sunday for Gainesville where they will visit Mrs. McIntosh's daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Stubbs. They also plan to visit in Clayton, Ga., before returning to Pahokee.

Mr. and Mrs. Kell Hood and family have returned home after a vacation in South Carolina and Georgia.

W. M. Johnson, Jr. Promoted In Navy

ALAMEDA, CALIF. (FPTNC)—Marine Lance Corporal William M. Johnson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Johnson, Sr., of Pahokee, was promoted to his present rank on July 1.

He is serving as a member of the guard at Marine Barracks, Naval Air Station, Alameda, Calif.

A graduate of Pahokee High School, Corporal Johnson entered the Marines in July, 1962.

University Road Needs Are Told

It looked this week like Florida Atlantic University will have to look to some other than the county commission for a new parking lot and a road of road signs.

County Commissioner George Warren Monday failed to convince his colleagues that putting county forces and equipment to work to help the University out of a hole, was the proper thing to do.

Warren asked the board to approve putting in a base and a shell rock top for a 300-car parking lot. He also asked the county to furnish 60 traffic signs needed at the University.

The board said it had agreed earlier to build roads and to meet other commitments for projects outside the campus perimeter. This having been done, the board declined to take any action on the parking lot or signs, since both are within the limits of the campus which is the responsibility of the State Board of Control.

The county commission this week voted to extend Haverhill Road in a straight line rather than build a dog leg necessary to relocate a crossing over the Seaboard Airline railroad tracks.

The railroad had asked the commission to relocate a proposed crossing since the plan called for crossing two set of tracks at the original location on the projected roadway.

The railroad later said it would not object to the two-track crossing if the county wanted to pay the extra $15,000 it would cost. The board decided Monday it would do just as economical to pay extra for the crossing rather than undertake construction of more road needed to move the crossing westward.

FAA Wants To Know Full Airport Plan

Future plans for a 600-acre tract near International Airport which the county hopes to get to help raise funds for building a new terminal complex, must be plotted on paper before the county can gain control of the land.

This was the substance of a message to the board this week from the Federal Aviation Authority who controls the acreage.

Before it will give the county control, the FAA said, the board must set out a plan on how the land is to be used, how it will be zoned and how the county plans to dispose of the property.

The matter was referred to a recently named airport liaison committee for coordination with county planning and zoning departments and other representatives interested in the acquisition and sale of the airport land.

In other action, the board authorized its legal department to notify the FAA that funds from the sale of the electrical distribution system at the airport—wanted by the Florida Power and Light Co.—will be used for capital improvements at the airport.

Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Young and children left Saturday for Maryland where they will visit her relatives.

A nationally-known feed company presented recently in its sales promotion publication, a message of interest to every farmer.

It is titled "Ten Proven Ways to Lose Money." Here it is, slightly revised to conserve space:

1. Just Keep a Few Sketchy Records—When you're losing money you'll never know why or how. Complete records will tell you how you're doing. They'll help, too, when you need financing.

2. Buy The "Bargains" — You may be lucky now and then and get by, but in the long run you're not likely to get topgrade results unless you start with the best.

3. Don't Bother About Market Trends—It may sound like a chore to keep up with market trends and forecasts, but unless you do you won't be able to plan production so you can sell at the best price.

4. Don't Worry About A Little Spilled Feed — If you took the trouble to prevent every bit of waste, you'd probably be able to increase conversion efficiency only a small amount per unit, but for large numbers it would add up to a good-sized saving at the end of a year.

5. Keep All Ages Of Animals At The Same Time — If you must have different ages, do it on a systematic basis, separate the age groups and route your work traffic from young to old so you don't carry disease from old to young where losses will run high.

6. Use That Breeding Animal Right Away — being in a hurry to use new breeding stock without a sufficient period of isolation can be costly. When a proper period of isolation has elapsed without disease developing, it is generally safe to introduce new animals into your herd.

7. Let The Building Stand Empty — Buildings and equipment represent an investment. The busier you can keep them, the more dollars they'll return to you. Buildings and equipment don't make money for you while they're idle.

8. Cut Corners On Progress — If you start with a production program, don't be careless in carrying it out or take shortcuts in recommended techniques. Lazy management reduces profit.

9. Don't Vaccinate Every Time — You may have gotten by for awhile, but it's a gamble. Sooner or later you may lose, and in a big way. It's cheaper in the long run, and safer, to follow a regular disease prevention program.

10. Hire A Deadbeat To Run It For You — Poor management can wipe out every penny of potential profit before an operation gets off the ground. The answer: Get a good manager, or run it yourself.

Down here in the Southeast no one has ever been much interested in raising sheep. In Florida our population of "woolies" is so small as to be insignificant.

I was interested, therefore, to find articles on sheep in two publications that came recently to my desk on the same day. One, passed on to me as a relic of the past, was the September, 1898 issue of the "Southern Cultivator and Dixie Farmer." The other was the June, 1964 issue of "Electricity on the Farm."

In the 66-year-old publication an Ohio correspondent urged Southeastern farmers to get into the sheep business and "build up an industry that will be profitable to the farmer and of inestimable benefit to all the people of the Southern States."

In the "Electricity" issue, under the title "Sheep Can Be Profitably Raised in the Southeast," is a report on a project being carried on by a staff member of the Clemson University (formerly College) experimental station.

His assignment: Take over a farm and show that sheep can be raised economically in the Southeast.

From his experience of managing a sheep ranch at Johnsonville, South Carolina, he concludes it can be done. He warns, however, not to try raising lambs except on slotted floors.

The Ohio writer, back in 1898 when livestock was permitted to roam at will, also had a warning for Southern farmers: "Before you engage extensively in raising sheep, exterminate the dogs. Shoot them, tax them to death—anyway to get rid of them. Sheep and dogs will not prosper together. The dogs may but the sheep will not."

REPORT ON VETERANS AVAILABLE

There is now available a report which presents detailed national statistics on the social and economic characteristics of the civilian male population. Based on the 1960 Census of Population, data are included on mobility status, years of school completed, marital status, family characteristics and relationship, employment status, weeks worked in 1959, major occupation group, income in 1959, and tenure and value of housing unit. Generally, separate statistics are presented for war veterans and veterans of peacetime service and for total and non-white veterans. Copies of this report may be purchased from the Miami Field Office, U. S. Department of Commerce, Room 1628, Federal Office Building, according to Marion A. Leonard, Director. The price is 70 cents per copy.

Better Education For Homemakers Asked By Economist

One of the nation's leading home economists has called for better education for homemakers.

Dr. Margaret C. Browne, director of the division of home economics for the Federal Extension Service, said this week, "It has always seemed a sad commentary on our sense of values that we believe one should have education in order to be a plumber or a beautician or an electrician or a mechanic—but it isn't necessary in order to be a wife and mother."

Dr. Browne believes that most of our social problems would disappear if every child could grow up in a family atmosphere that fulfilled his needs for love, intellectual and physical growth, discipline, and moral values.

Homemaking education, Dr. Browne says, can help in solving such critical present day problems as school dropouts and delinquency.

She urged homemakers to be better informed and more responsible consumers. She recommended writing to the president of a company that puts a poor product on the market.

Dr. Browne challenged homemakers to keep informed and then work through every available channel to get the action that will help correct the ills of society.

Dixie farmers set their clocks by the Standard Man!

Southern farmers trust Standard Oil's deliveries as much as the dependable quality of its farm fuels. They count on their Standard Oil Man and the postman to get through on schedule, regardless of weather. They also count on Standard's gasolines to enable their tractors to take peak loads in full stride. Top performers, too, in your car or truck. Standard Diesel Fuel—its unfailing purity and high ignition quality assure complete combustion, full hard-working power.

A message from the Treasury of a free people

How to speak out for freedom today

Free men have never gone in much for silence. Even before the first thirteen States became United States, men were speaking for freedom loud and clear.

Today Americans speak out for freedom many ways—in Congress, in local government, in neighborhood activities. Some speak out for freedom in other languages, in other lands. And millions of Americans speak out for freedom every time they buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

Every Savings Bond you buy is an investment in freedom. While you're saving money for your own family's future, you're helping Uncle Sam tend to the business of keeping men free today.

Perhaps you don't speak out for freedom in the same tone of voice when you buy a Bond as Patrick Henry did in his famous speech. But you speak every bit as surely. And every bit as proudly.

Why not speak out for freedom now? Buy Bonds at the bank or on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Keep freedom in your future with

Using "Spirit" as a name for God, the Christian Science Bible
Lesson Sunday will explore how the qualities of Spirit bring harmony into human affairs.

Bible readings will include this description: "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law" (Gal. 5).

Among selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will be the following: Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual, they must near the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite, —in order that sin and mortally may be put off" (p. 265).

Cattle Imports Cause Price Drop

WASHINGTON — The Johnson administration is looking to the House to reverse a Senate setback in a long and somewhat bitter battle it has been waging with the cattle industry over meat imports and a sharp decline in beef prices.

The Senate passed by 72-15 vote Tuesday a bill which would cut back imports of beef, veal and lamb nearly 30 per cent below last year. Both Florida Senators voted for the bill.

The House has yet to act upon the import quota bill. Administration officials are fairly confident that the house will not pass it.

The measure is being pushed by the American beef cattle industry, which is politically strong in many states because it is the largest single element, from an income standpoint, in agriculture.

The administration on the other hand opposes the measure and has indicated President Johnson would veto it if it should pass both Houses.

The controversy began with a decline in cattle prices which started in January, 1963. Prices were down nearly 30 per cent by May of this year. Many cattlemen suffered financial losses—a fact upon which both the administration and the industry agree.

Earlier, cattlemen had aroused administration ire by defeating a bill to defeat White House-sponsored legislation which would have given the agriculture department authority, subject to a producer referendum, to extend controls to the livestock industry.

The core of the present conflict is an argument over what caused the sharp break in cattle prices

Livestock men contend that a big increase in beef imports in recent years was to blame. But the administration argues that imports play only a minor part. A major factor, it says, was a sharp expansion in cattle production in this country.

In the past six years herds have grown to record-high levels and the end is not in sight.

Critics also blame the administration's feed grain program which tended to hold corn prices lower than they otherwise might have been—thus encouraging the heavy feeding of cattle and production of a large tonnage of beef.

Only a part of the decline in cattle prices has been passed on to consumers in the form of lower retail prices.

The administration holds that legislated restrictions on beef imports are not needed and would be embarrassing to the government in current trade negotiations at Geneva.

This country is trying to persuade other nations to lower their tariffs, and reduce or eliminate import quotas and other restrictions on world trade.

It says a quota measure is not needed because the big beef exporters—Australia, New Zealand, Ireland and Mexico—have entered into voluntary agreements to cut back shipments to this country to about the level proposed in the senate-approved bill.

But the cattle industry and congressional backers of the quota bill argue that the livestock industry needs greater protection than would be provided by voluntary agreements.

Mrs. Marshall Lair and daughter, Miss Dottie Lair are vacationing at Luverne and Mobile, Ala., where they will be the guest of Mrs. Lair's mother, Mrs. C. W. Howell, and other relatives.

New $3\frac{3}{4}\%$ interest on U.S. Savings Bonds

The Treasury explains why the new ones you buy and the ones you own now are better than ever

Q: How does the new $3\frac{3}{4}\%$ interest rate benefit me?

A: With Series E Bonds, the rate turns $18.75 into $25.00 fourteen months faster than the old rate. Your savings increase faster, because your Bonds mature in just 7 years, 9 months.

With Series H Bonds, the 10-year maturity period stays the same but more interest is paid you each six months. With both E and H Bonds the new rate works out to $2\frac{1}{4}\%$ for the first year and a half; then a guaranteed 4% each year to maturity.

Q: When did the new rate become effective?

A: June 1, 1959.

Q: Does the new rate change the Bonds I bought before June 1, 1959?

A: All older E and H Bonds pay more now—an extra $\frac{1}{4}\%$ from now on, when held to maturity. The increase takes effect in the first full interest period after June 1.

Q: Will the Bonds I own automatically earn their new rate?

A: Yes. You don't need to do a thing—just hold on to your Bonds.

Q: When my H Bonds mature, will they keep on earning interest?

A: Yes. An automatic 10-year extension privilege went into effect along with the new interest rate. This means your H Bonds will automatically keep earning interest after maturity.

Q: With the new interest rate, should I cash in my old Bonds and buy new ones?

A: No. The automatic $\frac{1}{4}\%$ increase makes it unnecessary—and in almost every case it is to your advantage—to retain your present Bonds.

Q: How are series H Bonds different from series E Bonds?

A: The chief difference is this: You buy H Bonds at full face value and the interest is paid by Treasury check every six months for the life of the Bond. You buy E Bonds at 75% of face value and the interest accumulates to maturity. H Bonds provide income for living expenses, while E Bonds build a nest egg for the future. That's why many retired people hold H Bonds and families saving for, say, a child's education, buy E Bonds.

Q: In what denominations can I buy series E and series H Bonds?

A: E Bonds: $25 (cost $18.75), $50 (cost $37.50), $100 (cost $75.00), $200 (cost $150.00), $500 (cost $375.00), $1,000 (cost $750.00), $10,000 (cost $7,500.00).

H Bonds: $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. They are priced at face value.

Q: How safe are U.S. Savings Bonds?

A: Savings Bonds are an absolutely riskless way to save. The United States Government guarantees the cash value of your Bonds will not drop, that it can only grow.

Q: What if my Bonds should be lost, stolen or destroyed?

A: You can't lose. Every Bond purchased is recorded by the Treasury. If anything happens to your Bonds they are replaced—free.

Q: Where can I buy Bonds?

A: Buy E Bonds at any bank—it takes only a few minutes. Buy them automatically through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. This Plan means you can have any amount you name automatically deducted every payday. The Bonds you buy by installments are "delivered" to you automatically. Too. Your bank will take your order for H Bonds.

Q: How do I help strengthen America's peace power when I buy U.S. Savings Bonds?

A: Peace costs money—money for military strength and for defense. And money saved by individuals helps keep our economy sound.

Cantaloupes May Be Chosen By Its Feel, Looks, Smell

The way it feels, looks and smells is the most reliable test for ripeness in a cantaloupe or a honeydew melon.

In selecting cantaloupe, marketing specialists with the Florida Agricultural Extension Service suggest that you look at the stem end. If it's smooth and slightly indented, it's ready to eat.

Look closely and you will notice that the netting on a vine-ripened melon is well raised and stands out in bold relief all over the surface of the melon. The background between the corky gray netting should be turning light yellow.

A mature cantaloupe has a distinct aroma at the blossom end. But smelling the blossom end of a cantaloupe to find out whether it is ripe is not a sure test for ripeness. The softening could be caused by shoppers ahead of you who have bruised and pinched it.

Don't shake a melon to see if the seeds are loose. The seeds may rattle because other people have shaken it.

In the case of honeydew, the melon's skin color changes from green to creamy white as they ripen.

Ripe honeydews feel waxy or velvety and have an unmistakable honeydew aroma at the blossom end. They do not have the smooth, indented stem of ripe cantaloupes.

Benefits Showing From FCD Program

Benefits already received are running far in excess of expenditures for the 18-county Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District works, according to a 15-year history released by the FCD.

The new booklet summing up the FCD construction program to date shows that more than $200 million in benefits have been received since the project got underway in 1949. And these benefits take into consideration only those of flood damage prevention and land enhancement.

R. S. Miles, Chairman, points out that the $200 million does not include such benefits as replenishment of the underground well fields that supply water for homes, businesses and industries; prevention of salt water intrusion; new opportunities for public recreation, etc. "If these benefits could be

A message from the Treasury of a free people.

Each of the seven denominations of Series E Savings Bonds shows a different President of the United States. If you're interested in this kind of art, the seven make a nice collection.

Along with the hobby, Savings Bonds offer such extras as riskless investing, 33 1/4% more money at maturity, and financial freedom for your future.

But there are other kinds of freedom tied in with your purchase of Savings Bonds. Freedom to speak your piece, choose your job, and own your property, to name a few. Every Bond you buy helps our government further the cause of freedom everywhere in the world today.

Why not start collecting U. S. Savings Bonds now? Only $18.75 each for the George Washington variety, at your bank or on Payroll Savings where you work.

computed," Miles notes, "the savings to the State of Florida would be astronomical."

While the entire project is only 40 percent completed, studies by both the U. S. Corps of Engineers and the District show that $85 million in flood damage has already been prevented. In short, the booklet points out, benefits already returned by the project are running far ahead of the $174 million spent so far.

After only 15 years of construction the FCD is now operating 11 pumping stations, more than 1,300 miles of canals and levees, over 60 major spillways and dams, plus several hundred secondary water control structures. Salinity control structures have also been built in all FCD canals leading to the ocean to prevent salt water intrusion. Three giant water conservation areas in Palm Beach, Broward and Dade Counties, covering some 1,345 square miles, are in operation.

The new history also presents three construction maps showing work completed, or under construction, at the end of the first five year period, second five years and the present time.

The book notes that in 1949 the Corps of Engineers first mapped out plans for the District; they estimated that for each $1 spent a sum of $2.05 would be returned. This year the Corps took another look and found that for every dollar spent the project is already returning $4.20 in benefits.

The completed Project is expected to cost $381 million which means that, under the present estimate, it will be returning benefits of $1.6 billion to the taxpayers.

The new book, just off the press, gives a history of the flood control problems dating back to 1928 and it is liberally sprinkled with pictures showing conditions prior to construction, under construction, and land conditions following completion of some of the works. Copies of the FCD booklet, "Fifteen Years of Progress," may be obtained free at FCD headquarters, 901 Evernia Street, West Palm Beach, or by writing the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District, P.
